

Sample Capital Budgeting Problems

1. A company is considering a project that requires an initial investment of $24M to build a new plant and purchase equipment. The investment will be depreciated as a MACRS 7-year class (see p. 21 in the text) asset. The new plant will be built on some of the company's land which has a current, after-tax market value of $4.3M. The company will produce units at a cost of $130 each and will sell them for $420 each. There are annual fixed costs of $0.5M. Unit sales are expected to be 150,000 each year for the next 6 years, at which time the project will be abandoned. At that time, the plant and equipment is expected to be worth $8M (before tax) and the land is expected to be worth $5.4M (after tax). To supplement the production process, the company will need to purchase $1M worth of inventory. That inventory will be depleted during the final year of the project. The company has $100M of debt outstanding with a yield-to-maturity of 8%, and has $150M of equity outstanding with a beta of 0.9. The expected market return is 13% and the risk-free rate is 5%. The company's marginal tax rate is 40%. Should the project be accepted?

Solution

WACC:

$$w_d = $100M / $250M = 0.4$$

$$k_d = 8\%$$

$$w_e = $150M / $250M = 0.6$$

$$k_e = 5\% + 0.9 \times (13\% - 5\%) = 12.2\%$$

$$\Rightarrow \text{WACC} = 0.4 \times 8\% \times (1 - 0.4) + 0.6 \times 12.2\% = 9.24\%$$

Capital Expenditure:

Solutions for Capital Budgeting Problems Minoo Dhunjisha Daver,1965 Problems in Capital Budgeting and the 'Discounted Payback Plus' Solution James S. Sagner,2007 Capital budgeting techniques that use discounted cash flow analysis are widely recommended in the financial literature and frequently used by business However there is accumulating evidence that companies are reluctant to commit funds to long term projects The most likely explanation is that actual experience has resulted in disappointing returns often below a company s cost of capital No capital budgeting technique currently in use applies probabilities to future inflow estimates to adjust the financial analysis to previous experience with the requesting business unit The discounted payback plus technique recommended in this paper may be a reasonable alternative approach to the analysis of a capital budgeting project yielding more conservative results based on the expected value of cash inflows beyond the point of payback Mathematical Programming and the Analysis of Capital
