The Government Procurement Card Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Committee of Public Accounts,2012 The Government Procurement Card GPC is a payment card which individuals can use to purchase goods and services the supplier is paid immediately and the balance is paid in full each month by departments However inappropriate or fraudulent use of the card brings significant risks The strength of the controls in place varies significantly between departments This is particularly evident in the Ministry of Defence which accounts for around three quarters of total GPC expenditure but which limits checks to only a sample of its transactions The Cabinet Office has overall responsibility and recently created a GPC Steering Group The Steering Group introduced a central GPC policy in November 2011 setting out a minimum standard across government The central policy should consider going further for example by specifying 100% transaction checking blocking categories of expenditure by default banning use of the card for certain items such as alcohol and ensuring that all cardholders are permanent staff members However the initial challenge will be for the GPC Steering Group to ensure that the policy as it stands is being implemented and to hold departments to account where there are found to be gaps in the design and implementation of controls As procurement processes have advanced substantially the estimated difference in cost of using a card over other methods has reduced The Cabinet Office has now committed to refreshing the business case which should help departments to make the right decisions about when using the cards is the most cost effective way of buying goods and services
