Confronting Exclusion African Minds, 2013 South Africa has made important political strides over the past two decades It has created a framework of democratic legislative executive and judicial institutions that mark a clear break from the apartheid past In theory they are inclusive and offer every citizen equal access to constitutionally protected rights Their capacity to deliver however is coming under increasing pressure and as this happens citizen confidence in their efficacy is waning Much of the pressure which ultimately may affect their legitimacy in the eyes of ordinary citizens stems from the desperation and sense of economic exclusion experienced by those who find themselves at the wrong end of South Africa s grossly unequal society If this decline in trust persists the cohesive effects of the country s democratic institutions will diminish and instability will become an increasingly common feature of political contestation An immediate but only partial remedy to the current state of affairs would be to prioritise transparency accountability and leadership integrity within the system to restore trust in the bona fides of key institutions The longer term challenge will be to counter a growing sense of economic exclusion where violent police action rather than democratic process is increasingly employed to stave off the manifestations of material anxiety experienced by struggling citizens This edition of the Transformation Audit titled Confronting Exclusion focuses on instances of such exclusion but as in previous years also prioritises the search for inclusive economic policy and future strategies to address them By looking at each of the four chapter areas it seeks to find answers to the challenge of a society in which the promise of true freedom and equal rights will remain only that until people feel equipped to be in charge of their own destiny and that of their children

Global Depopulation and Redistribution by 2050 A.D. Prithvish Nag, Amrita Paul, 2024-03-25 Until recently the world has been preoccupied with over population pressure on resources alarming growth rates fertility and unemployment Issues like reduction in population growth rate increasing longevity the greying population reducing fertility rates and overall depopulation have not been considered seriously Depopulation has led to redistribution Further the world economy forces women to choose between career and child COVID 19 has further aggravated the situation It appears that population processes are smooth with no major upheavals But if we delve deeper we will find undercurrents happening concurrently which contribute towards population composition These undercurrents have been swift and cannot be captured by decadal censuses Hence one has to depend on alternative sources Surprisingly the electronic media has become quite sensitive to population issues In this book an attempt has been made to understand these issues differently

Mass Immigration and the National Interest Vernon M. Briggs, 1996 Although the United States is in the midst of the largest immigration experience in its history there is little recognition of the effects that immigration policy has on parallel policies to achieve national economic and social objectives In his new edition Vernon Briggs Jr describes and analyzes current national policy on mass immigration in terms of the economic and social impact it has had on the nation s labor force Drawing on both historical and contemporary material Briggs shows how immigration policy in the twentieth century has shifted from being primarily a social policy to become a political policy and why it needs to become an economic policy as the nation prepares to enter the twenty first century
