1) What is the purpose of the National Geographic Bee?

The National Geographic Bee, an educational program of the National Geographic Society, is a nationwide geography competition for U.S. schools with 7th grade and through 8th grade designed to encourage the teaching and study of geography.

2) Who can participate in the National Geographic Bee?

Schools from all 50 U.S. states, the U.S. territories, and the U.S. Department of Defense schools compete in the National Geographic Bee. Students enrolled in public or private schools may not compete as part of a homeschool association's Bee and community students who are homeschoolers must participate through a registered homeschool association.

3) What is the format of the Bee competition?

Registered schools hold their school-level contest following the eligibility rules and procedures the registered procedures contained in the school-level instruction booklet. The school is responsible for their school-level Bee. Each participating school produces one school winner.

A teacher administers the written qualifying test produced by the publisher to the winner at the school level. Only the answer sheet is returned to the National Geographic Society. Tests received after the specified deadline will not be graded.

In early March the teacher who signed the qualifying test is notified if the school Bee winner qualified to represent the school at the state level. The top one (1) student (selected based on qualifying test scores) qualify to represent their schools and compete at the state level. Scores are not released, only notification as to whether the student qualifies or did not qualify for the state competition. The notification includes information on where the qualified student is to report, the date, time, etc. This information is not given over the telephone.

State qualifiers compete in an oral competition at the state level, which is usually held in late March or early April. To compete, invited qualified students must be present at the state Bee on the assigned day and at the assigned time. The 2009-10 State Bee will be on April 9, 2009 and is usually held at Western Kentucky University in Bowling Green, KY.
