OUR FINDINGS

Advances in controller and drive technologies allow today's servers to handle an ever more demanding workload. There are, however, differences among the latest offerings from major vendors. In Principled Technologies' tests in our labs, the Dell PowerEdge R710 server with the PowerEdge RAID Controller (PERC) H700 and six SATA solid state drives (SSDs) delivered up to 182.9 percent greater performance than the current HP ProLiant DL380 G7 server with the HP Smart Array P410i controller and six SATA SSDs.

OUR PROCESS

We used the Iometer benchmark to gauge how well each server and storage solution would handle a variety of common storage tasks. We ran nine Iometer access specifications, which included OLTP database, Microsoft® Exchange Server, file server, and typical operating system workloads. We ran these tests against five common RAID levels: RAID 0, 5, 6, 10, and 50.
